

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A self-attaching lighting device includes a transparent suction cup and a light source. The transparent suction cup has a cup portion for attachment
5 to a surface, and a neck portion connected to the cup portion. The neck portion has one end remote from the cup portion and formed with a lamp recess. The light source includes a casing that is connected to the neck portion of the transparent suction cup, and a light
10 emitting member that is mounted in the casing and that extends into the lamp recess in the neck portion of the transparent suction cup.